Vitamin E - fitness for our cells

Vitamin E - the "cell-protection" vitamin is an indispensable helper when it comes to strengthening the body cells and our organism in the fight against factors caused by the environment and by stress. Without a sufficient supply of Vitamin E, it is very easy for exactly these notorious "free radicals" (cell-damaging substances) to attack our health.

Calcium - the vital substance for teeth and bones

Calcium plays an important role in bone formation and bone strength. As from around the age of 30, our bone mass declines continually. Women especially are affected by an increased bone decomposition.

The valuable mineral supports the formation and preservation of bone tissue as well as the growth of teeth.

Magnesium - provides the body with new energy

Up to three quarters of all Germans do not have an optimal supply of Magnesium. This is the result of a study carried out by the University of Giessen. And it is exactly this mineral which is extremely important for billions of body cells of the human organism. Magnesium activates the metabolism and plays a significant role in the function of nerves and muscles especially.
